Geography

- Trade is the buying and selling of goods and services we want and need.
- Global trade increases the range of food items available to us in the UK.
- The physical geography of the UK prevents us from growing certain foods and we have limited capacity to grow enough food.
- Buying seasonal produce when possible helps the national economy and can be better for the environment.
- The cost of items we buy cover the raw materials, the manufacturing, and the packaging and transportation.
- That when we buy Fairtrade or rainforest alliance products we are ensuring that the farmers are getting a fair deal for their raw materials.

History

- Vikings came to the British Isles as part of a bigger story of their sea-faring and expansion
- The kingdom of Wessex tried to resist the Viking Invaders (Alfred the Great and Aethelred)
- York was an important international trading centre for the Vikings.
